

Kristi joined the FPCW staff in February 2015. Her background includes a number of upper level executive assistance roles (including Morgan Stanley and Boar's Head Brands), several entrepreneurial ventures (a specialty food company and direct mail catalog, a marketing consulting firm, an antique shop), sales, business and product development, lots of writing and – always - customer service. She is also a certified Peer Counselor, trained by the National Mental Health Association. So how does all that fit with a church office? Perfectly.

Kristi is charged on a daily basis with the administration and operational needs of the busy front office of the small company that is First Presbyterian Waynesville. She supports the pastor and Session, the church staff and committee members and the congregation as needed. That's a lot of calendars, coordination and conversations. It is phone work and filing. It's printing, folding, organizing. It's getting ready ahead of time, listening, being careful with the little things. It is a multi-tasked position; her experience and talents serve her well. Be sure to stop by the office and say hello!
